

The professional network of agri-food and environment

chil

chil.org

chil.org

@red_chil

www.facebook.com/chil.org

Chil is a knowledge platform specialized in agriculture, food, environment and rural environment that aims to provide a web tool of high value to the users that are involved in this field. In addition, its goal is to introduce the field of agriculture, food industry and rural environment into the digital society.

Professional Network

A specialized network for the professionals in the fields of food and agriculture. A useful and versatile tool; a meeting point for the members of the field.

Open, free and collaborative

This is an open platform, entirely free, where the participation and interaction between the users and organisations is of crucial importance.

Knowledge transmission

The platform has a wide variety of tools integrated such as blogs and work groups which enable the users and organisations to share specialized content of great interest.

Free web-hosting

Any professional, business, organization and workgroup registered in Chil can use our free web-hosting service and use the domain, inside Chil, that they prefer.

Georeference

In Chil we georeference everything, not only user and organisations profiles, but also events, job opportunities and courses so that you can find information within your area.

Automatic Translation

News, events y much more content including internal messaging, are automatically translated to more than 30 languages. Chil has as a goal to become an international reference in the agriculture and food industry.

Also in other social networks

Chil is also involved in the mayor social networks such as Facebook or Twitter, you can check all the updates and information in real time through our official accounts. You can follow us on Twitter (@red_chil) and on Facebook (www.facebook.com/chil.org)

Live Events

From Chil we promote the broadcasting and transmission of all the events that are related to the field. In order to achieve this, we use our Live Blog's. You can get more information of the upcoming events that will be live broadcasted in the section of "Highlights" in our main page.

